NEW FIELDS

A discovery well must be at least 1 mile from the nearest existing field boundary before a new field may be designated. An oil and/or gas "field" is considered to be a unified surface area underlain by one or more oil and gas reservoirs or pools, and composed of reasonably contiguous surface producing units. An oil-producing unit will cover a minimum of 40 acres to a maximum of 160 acres. A gas-producing unit will normally cover a minimum of 160 acres to a maximum of 640 acres, depending on the producing area involved.
