PREFACE

Although classes began at The University of Oklahoma in 1892, no instruction in geology was offered until the arrival of Charles Newton Gould in 1900. In the early years, requirements for the Bachelor of Arts degree in geology included preparation of a written thesis, and the first to earn this degree was Charles T. Kirk, who was awarded his diploma in 1904. Only a few of these B.A. theses were written, but since that 1904 beginning approximately 700 theses and dissertations have been accepted as partial requirement for degrees in geology and geophysics. These are listed herein. Included are theses accepted toward an advanced degree in geological engineering prior to 1964, at which time geological engineering was transferred to the College of Engineering.

Theses and dissertations are listed by author and by date and are indexed according to localities covered. For convenience of reference, an outline map showing counties in Oklahoma is included at the back of the catalog. Reference to subsequent publication is noted for some of the theses, but this information is incomplete; many other theses have appeared in print either as originally prepared or in a modified or revised version.

Copies of most of the theses are available for inspection in Bizzell Memorial Library of The University of Oklahoma or in the Geology and Geophysics Library in Gould Hall on the campus. They can be obtained through Interlibrary Loan on request from any official library to Bizzell Memorial Library. Also, dissertations accepted since 1955 can be purchased from University Microfilms, 300 North Zeeb Road, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106, either in microform or hard copy.
